In the Flow

I love indoor-outdoor living since I grew up in Montecito. Life was...so inherently charming and romantic," says NorCal-based Suzanne Tucker, interior designer behind Tucker & Marks. In her second monograph, Interiors: The Romance of Design, she showcases her fair share of landscapes. For one Piedmont project, continuous flow of space even meant moving the pool. "I envisioned the wonderful pavilion at Lotusland, how it would be so seductive to move the pool [in order] to see it from the front entrance while looking through the solarium; and to build a pavilion 100 yards in the distance with a fireplace that would draw you down." She outfitted the setting with inviting armchairs and lanterns. "It's about creating a mood," she adds, "a space that feels embracing." tuckerandmarks.com.

FRESH-CUT FINDS WITH THE BOUQS

An ingenious online alternative to unsightly flowers-by-phone, THE BOUQS (thebouqs.com) has arrived. As new chief designer, L.A. floral artist Eric Buterbaugh has instilled his elegance in the generous range of $40 bouquets. When not finding inspiration at the HUNTINGTON GARDENS or the "old school" ROBINSON GARDENS, here, a few of his sources: The smartest thing you can do at home is get beautiful vases to fill with seasonal stems. I love Mid-century Murano glass. There's always a collection at MODERNICA. 323-934-1254; modernica.net. • I recently found vases for clients at HOLLYHOCK. Suzanne Rheinstein has the most sophisticated eye. 310-777-0100; hollyhockinc.com. • For amazing containers and fantastic customer service, I love INNER GARDENS on Melrose. 310-492-9990; innergardens.com.

WEST HOLLYWOOD GO BOLD

In this arrangement—also in his new Stichting Kunstboek book, Eddie Zaratsian: Custom Florals and Lifestyle—the floral designer salutes October with painted anthurium in swirled vessels "webbed" in black wire. 310-508-6126; eddiezaratsian.com.
