Who's who behind the scenes of this issue, plus their favorite California places

François Dischinger

For lensman François Dischinger, capturing Rosetta and Balthazar Getty's family amid their breathtaking hilltop estate in Los Angeles for "Cool, Calm, Collected," p.38, was "a professional dream come true." "[The Gettys] were the most charming subjects ever...a real family and very welcoming," he says. The seasoned photographer has shot for the likes of Cultured, Harper's Bazaar, Wallpaper and Vogue Australia. C SPOTS • In-N-Out Burger near LAX before departing • Hotel Bel-Air • Book Soup in West Hollywood

Jessica Ritz

"It's always inspiring to meet cool creatives who are deeply entrenched in Southern California, yet incorporate a broad perspective into their work," says writer Jessica Ritz of featuring "Bungalow 101," p.16, and "Check Mate" and "Urban Zen," p.18. The L.A. native has written for the Los Angeles Times, The New York Times, Sunset magazine and VanityFair.com. C SPOTS • Downtown L.A. Arts District for its stock of beautiful buildings and great energy • Griffith Park—my city's backyard retreat • Palm Springs Aerial Tramway for kitsch and fun

Trip Haenisch

"It was a true collaboration between myself and [Skye Hoppus]," says interior designer Trip Haenisch of curating the perfect home (featured in "Fine Tuned," p.60) for blink-182 member Mark Hoppus and his wife, Skye. "She has a great art collection and a lot of interesting antiques from Europe and the East Coast, which lends to the personalized and collected look." Haenisch's award-winning work has landed him on the AD100 list and in more than 70 publications. C SPOTS • Nepenthe restaurant in Big Sur for a glass of Pinot Noir and amazing vistas • The Parker Palm Springs • San Luis Obispo—with Pismo, Avila, Shell Beach and Morro Bay, there's always somewhere to eat and play

Leilani Marie Labong

After detailing the grand-scale Martis Camp dreamscape in "Into the Woods," p.74, writer Leilani Marie Labong has a new resolution: "Building a home made of space and light is now at the top of my 2016 to-do list—lottery winnings required." Covering design, art, fashion and travel, Labong has frequented the pages of numerous publications, including Coastal Living, HGTV Magazine, Luxe Interiors + Design and 7x7. C SPOTS • The Presidio of San Francisco for eucalyptus forests, meandering hiking trails and ocean views • S.F.'s Spruce restaurant • The body-temp outdoor pool at Solage Calistoga in Napa Valley

Suzanne Tucker

"My projects take me far and wide, but I have always found a unique quality of light and living in Northern California," says award-winning interior designer Suzanne Tucker of dreaming up the Belvedere main room featured in Collage, p.82. From country villas and estates to mountain lodges and beach homes, Tucker has left her mark on myriad prestigious addresses, including the redesigned Auberge du Soleil resort in Rutherford. C SPOTS • Cocktails at Cavallo Point Lodge overlooking the Golden Gate Bridge • The farmers market at the San Francisco Ferry Building • Lotusland in Montecito

SUZANNE Tucker

"The setting is always a source of inspiration for me, and from which I inevitably take my initial cues. In this case, the southern exposure [of this Belvedere residence] with the abundance of water and sky instantly defined my color palette. I reflected the cool hues inside and balanced them with warmer tones, which one must do to offset the inevitable foggy days. Ultimately, this project is casual yet elegant, sophisticated yet bold, much like California itself!"
